Dear [redacted]

NOTICE OF REDUNDANCY

I refer to the recent communications with you about your position with MyRepublic Broadband Pte. Ltd. (the "Company").

As you know, the Company has been reviewing the way we are currently structured and operating which includes the part of the business in which you work. As part of this process, the Company has decided to restructure its operations. As a result of this, we regret to inform you that your position with the Company will be made redundant.

We understand that you have recently applied for other roles within the Enterprise team. Regrettably, the hiring managers have decided to move forward with other candidates who have more specialised experience and there are no other alternative positions reasonably available for you within the MyRepublic group of companies. Therefore, subject to what is outlined in the remainder of this letter, your employment with MyRepublic Broadband Pte. Ltd. will be terminated due to redundancy. Your official last day of employment will be 31 August 2024 ('Termination Date'), and your physical last day will be 28 August 2024. You will be placed on Garden Leave on 29 and 30 August 2024. For avoidance of doubt, this letter serves as a notice of termination of your employment with the Company. The date of this letter will be referred to as the 'Notification Date'.
